

The Time Has Come

1 message

Oscar Winchester <oscarwinchester90@gmail.com>

31 July 2024 at 23:12

To: ansh.vit42@gmail.com

Hey old friend, It's been a real amazing ride with you throughout the years, but the world has grown progressively a darker and darker place. With nowhere else to go, I cannot help but wonder if the sins of humanity can be purified by Jesus anymore.

As a last ditch effort, i have decided to bring salvation to some humans, along with myself, for we shall rise and be free of our sins, in the eyes of God.

Tomorrow, i will rid the world of myself, and take a few lucky ones with me, to seek peace in the shadow of our father who art in heaven. I would love to relive the memories of our old beloved place, i'll visit The House, one last time, and relive our memories of strike cheat and love, if you know what i mean, i'll just go there and keep the little package behind that old guy's memorial we had there, can't remember his name though, some people referred to him as the mayor lol, all he ever got was that little cardboard memorial and a plaque at the house, no use i'll say.

Still, I'll always remember our time together.

Anyways,
It was fun talking to you one last time, I've put it on my calendar all formal like, if you can believe that lol, in another life my friend.
regards,
Oscar